Other interests

There are a number of other occasions where a governor would need to declare an interest. If a governor is present at a meeting of the governing body of a school (including a meeting of a selection panel) at which the subject of consideration is, in the case of the governor him/herself or of a relative (including his/her spouse) living with him/her:

- that governor's appointment to a post at the school, or
- where that governor is employed at the school, his transfer from one post to another or his/her promotion or retirement, or
- the transfer from one post to another, dismissal, promotion, retirement or suspension of another person so employed, if the said transfer, dismissal, promotion, retirement, or suspension would result in a vacant post for which the governor would be a candidate, then the governor should declare an interest and withdraw from the meeting. Such action would also need to be taken if a governor has previously expressed an opinion or been directly involved in a matter relating to a disciplinary case, grievance or admission; or if the governor is related to, or is the spouse of, the person directly involved.
